In this talk first we shall introduce some basics of neural networks and then discuss a few popular network architectures along with the associated learning algorithms. This will then be followed by some applications of the networks discussed.